

INTERVIEW

Reach your goal:
Stop striving for perfection!

Watch my interview with Kevin Weiser

Living in the country often compared to Utopia, can make it difficult for those on the road to developing themselves. Why do I say that? It's one thing to be a perfectionist but another to be a Swiss perfectionist. To develop means taking risks, making mistakes and trying again. Yet it also means knowing when to stop correcting yourself!

Well, no one nor no one country is perfect. So how can perfectionists fulfill their dreams? I invite you to listen to my 17+-minute interview with Kevin Weiser.

Read about Kevin in our blog.

Although the interview does not look 100%, I would say, it is honest and filled with valuable advice.

Taking "Hangout in English!" one step further

I am so pleased that I have two motivated ladies taking part in weekly Hangout in English online sessions. And they are eager for more speaking practice!

And why is there a bitcoin picture? Well, this is just one of the many topics that we have discussed. These Hangouteers want to be challenged and are looking to expand their vocabulary and practice sharing their opinions in English. (Vocabulary lists and/or quick quizzes included.)

Our next set of online hangouts will begin on Monday, 12 April and run until 31 May 19:00-20:30. The topic we'll read about and discuss on the 12 April will be the Black Power Movement of the 60's and 70's.

We also have time for lighter discussions after a long day on Zoom. No worries - we do know how to hang out and have a laugh, too! Why not join us?

Payment (CHF 10.00 / session) now accepted via twint!

How to be annoying: Interrupt

Do I want to teach you how to be annoying? Noooo...not in the least. I do want to help you to learn how to interrupt people when necessary, though.

I found a funny recording/lesson created by the British Council that I used with my students. I think they had fun interrupting me. Maybe you'd like to try it out, too? Here's the audio file and the handouts. This could either be very educational, annoying or both!
